City's bond with Japan marks 20th anniversary

200 attend Red Wing Park's building dedication; street renamed Sakura Lane; cherry trees added

By Ruth Hodges Fraser
SCAVB President

The city of Virginia Beach, Sister Cities Association of Virginia Beach (SCAVB), Japanese Educational Culture Center (JECC) and the city's Department of Parks and Recreation celebrated the 20th anniversary of the "sister cities" relationship between Virginia Beach and Miyazaki City, Japan, during ceremonies held recently at the Miyazaki Garden at Red Wing Park, off General Booth Boulevard. The celebration was attended by more than 200 people, including students from three cities in Japan: Ishinomaki, Kitakyushu (Norfolk's sister city) and our own sister city, Miyazaki City. Also in attendance were Virginia Beach City Manager Jim Spore; Janis Weisberg, Norfolk Sister Cities Association president; and other Norfolk City Sister Association board members, as well as SCAVB members and local citizens who were visiting the park that day.

Fraser

Virginia Beach Mayor Will Sessoms dedicated the newly-constructed azumaya at the Miyazaki Garden at Red Wing Park, cut the opening ribbon and was assisted by Dr. Hiroyuki Hamada, JECC chair; Tatsuya Ishida, president of Miyazaki Sister Cities; Steve Downs, architect; and Michael Kalvort, director, Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department. Mrs. Mizuki Hamada served as translator.

Seven years in the making, the azumaya project exemplifies a true city-wide "team" effort between the city's parks and recreation, planning and public works departments, respectively. The city of Miyazaki contributed $30,000 towards the building costs.

Designed as the simple style house of Eastern Japan, the azumaya is a gazebo-type structure, with traditional Japanese tradition intended to be a place for contemplation, meditation and reflection. Receiving rave reviews from everyone in attendance, it has already proven to be well-utilized by the city's citizens and tourists alike.

A special part of the dedication was the renaming of the street; the main entrance road into the park will now be known as "Sakura Lane." "Sakura" is the Japanese word meaning "peace and tranquility," a fitting description of the garden, the azumaya and the 150 Toshima cherry trees which promenade the area beyond the garden. Hopefully, many people will sit under the trees, enjoying the tranquility and serenity of a special place representing "sisterhood" and international cooperation.

Business Profile: Ragged Robin

Ragged Robin's owners, Bryn Todman, Nancy York, are mother/daughter team

Have owned oceanfront business since 1982

By Greg Goldfarb

The sweet aroma of fresh candies fills the air at the Ragged Robin, as the walls shine with lines of exquisite china, crystal and silver items for sale. Behind the counter, owners Bryn Todman, and her mother, Nancy York, are all smiles, meeting and greeting locals and visitors enjoying the resort area.

"We are a 'locals' gift shop," said Todman. "We turn into a Christmas shop every year over the holidays and we try very hard not to have the same things that everyone else has."

Born in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, Todman, 48, moved to America in 1963 at age one. She moved from Washington, D. C., to Virginia Beach's King's Grant section in 1976, before graduating from First Colonial High School in 1982. That same year, at age 18, she began working at the Ragged Robin, doing general sales and being a "gopher." Following high school, Todman studied fashion merchandising at Tidewater Community College, but withdrew from classes to go to work.

"I was not an 'academic' and I thought I wanted to go into fashion," said Todman. "But I decided just to stay at the Ragged Robin."

Todman and York bought the business, which was founded in 1948, in xxxx, from Nadia Carney, Robert Herman, Barbara Lyle and Suzanne Jacobson.

"I can't imagine starting up a new business in this economy," said Todman. "We were fortunate enough to be involved with Ragged Robin as a business, to begin with. We've been asked many, many times to open in other places, including Williamsburg, but we're not interested in doing that."

Business has been good, said Todman, but like some other oceanfront merchants, she's glad the nearby new construction and improvements around the Laskin Road and Pacific Avenue intersection, are nearing completion. Her only concern is that after all is said-and-done, that she may have to relocate.

"I have idea what we'll eventually do," she said, "but my next goal is to start looking – where do I want to be? I'd like to stay here, if I can afford the rent, after they finish building the shops and apartments across the street."

Todman agrees with those who think the resort area should look better, but hopes that some of the area's "small town" feel won't be lost.

"We'll clean it up and pretty up the infrastructure, but we're turning the ocean

Davidson's departure from school board described by chair as "tremendous loss"

Replacement will be appointed by school board; public may apply for position; Nov. special election

By Kathy O'Hara

Former Virginia Beach School Board member, Dr. Todd C. Davidson, stepped down from service on August 1, leaving Virginia Beach to take the pastorate of Antioch Baptist Church in Cleveland, Ohio, in September. He was also senior pastor as Piney Grove Baptist Church in Virginia Beach.

Davidson

First elected to the school board in 2006, Davidson was re-elected in 2010 and has served as the board representative for a number of important committees and community organizations, including the Access College Foundation, the Equity Council and the Mayor's Committee for the Disabled.

School Board Chairman Dan Edwards described Davidson's resignation as a "tremendous loss" for the school system.

"Dr. Davidson was a stabilizing force on our school board, always keeping us focused on the greater good of children," said Edwards.

Davidson was proud to be part of the mission-focused Virginia Beach School Board, he said, pointing to several accomplishments as particular points of pride: The development of a world class strategic plan; a concentration on improving the success of African American males; and helping the school division navigate tough financial times.

"There are many life lessons that I have learned here and many friendships I have developed over the years," he said. "I will carry these with me."

Davidson characterized his decision to leave Virginia Beach as "agonizing," but

Central Library dedicates Edgar T. Brown local history archives

Dr. Stephen Mansfield, Princess Anne County/Virginia Beach Historical Society historian, will speak

By Christine Brantley

A dedication ceremony, honoring the late Edgar T. Brown and his extensive local history collection, will be held at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 11 at the Meyera E. Oberndorf Central Library on Virginia Beach Boulevard, near Thalia. The event is free and open to the public.

Speakers will include Dr. Stephen Mansfield, historian for the Princess Anne County/Virginia Beach Historical Society, along with members of the Brown family.

Often called Virginia Beach's unofficial historian, Brown was a collector and preserver of Princess Anne County and Virginia Beach history. In 2010, his wife, Sue, gave library officials permission to digitize his entire collection, making it accessible to the public through a special local history web site: www.vbgov.com/localhistory. Since then, library staff have scanned and catalogued thousands of post cards, pictures and more, including contents of 38 binders, 48 books and 36 oral history tapes.

"Edgar T. Brown's collection is a significant contribution to the fine art and study of local history," said library system Director Marcy Sims. "We're grateful to Sue Brown and her family for this valuable addition to the library's archives."

Gabby Gets the Gold

Mayor praises "flying squirrel;" awaiting her return home: She was born in Virginia Beach on Dec. 31, 1995 and last week, Gabrielle "Gabby" Douglas, 16, captured the hearts and minds of millions around the world, winning two gold medals for gymnastics at the 2012 London Olympics. The 4' 11"-tall daughter of Timothy Douglas and Natalie Hawkins lived in Virginia Beach and trained at a local gym, on her way to global admiration and recognition. Virginia Beach Mayor Will Sessoms issued this statement: "A new hero has entered the Virginia Beach history books. Her name is Gabby Douglas and she has made every resident of our great city very, very proud. Watching Gabby fly through the air, with such grace, poise and courage – and only 16 years old – it makes anyone choke up and smile. I can't help but admire someone so young and talented – someone who overcame so many challenges and yet kept up such a grueling training regimen. Gabby, we are your biggest fans! In Virginia Beach, we've grown accustomed to the sight of Navy jets flying overhead. But I don't think we'll ever grow tired of watching this 'Flying Squirrel' in our midst! Gabby, on behalf of every resident of the city of Virginia Beach, congratulations! You've made an entire city proud. We look forward to seeing you when you get when you get home to Virginia Beach."

Wave Church hosts Bishop Jakes: A pastor and author, Bishop T.D. Jakes spoke recently at the Wave Church, drawing attendees from some 29 states and six countries. Chief pastor of The Potter's House in Texas, with a congregation of 30,000, he's consulted with Presidents George W. Bush and Barack Obama. Called one of America's most influential evangelicals, he has written more than 50 books. He spoke at Wave Church's three-day leadership conference, which promotes leadership and church growth, and also featured Christian notables Wayne Alcorn, Dave Martin and Scott Wilson. Wave Church, on Great Neck Road, has some 5,000 members. It was Jakes' first visit to the church.

Black police pioneers to be honored: A special recognition ceremony, honoring the city's black law enforcement pioneers, will be held at 6 p.m. on Monday, August 20 at the Virginia Beach Police Department's Second Precinct, 820 Virginia Beach Boulevard. Free and open to the public, citizens are invited to attend this special community celebration, honoring the first black law enforcement officers who served Princess Anne County and the Town of Virginia Beach: Robert E.W. Sparrow; Mondoza Holloway; Clyde I. Siler; Alexander H. Woodhouse; Russell H. Lawrence; Charles Pace; Johnny E. Parks III; and Warfield M. Wood. Police auxiliary officers prior to 1969 will also be honored. A reception follows. Call 757-385-1158 for more information.

front into something different; it won't have the 'hometown' feel," she said. "Does it all have to be so glitzy; can't some of it be quaint?"

York likes the way Virginia Beach Town Center has evolved, but said that area is different from the resort area.

"I do like Town Center," said York, "but this is another ball game."

York also welcomes the oceanfront's improvements, but will also be glad when things wind down.

"We're still working on getting over it," said York, a Rockford, Il., native, adding that she plans to retire in a few years. "But basically you go day-to-day, hoping things get better; the city has been very helpful to us."

At Ragged Robin, which has 6,000 square feet of space, six employees and parking in front of and behind the store, Todman focuses on wedding and social invitations and stationary, drawing much of her customer base from the city's Hilltop and North End sections.

Todman lives in Bay Colony with her husband of 25 years, John, co-owner of Greenwich Supply Corporation, a Virginia Beach building supply company. Their son, Marshall, 19, attends Fort Union Military Academy. She has a brother in Wichita and her father's in Colorado Springs.

All-in-all, Todman said her business is steady and she's optimistic about the future.

"Business is business – there are good days and there are bad days," she said. "We're hopeful that the future will be bright."

pointed to the long and storied history of Antioch Baptist Church as a key factor in his decision. The church, founded in 1893, is renowned in its community for its outreach programs, including a fellowship fund that provides financial assistance for those in need, a hot meal feeding center and a program providing HIV prevention education and testing. Davidson's term expires in Dec. 2014. At its July 31 meeting, the school board set a timeline for an appointment process. Because his resignation is more than 90 days from a general election, the appointment of a successor will be a short-term one, with a special election required to take place in November. The person elected in the special election will hold office through Dec. 2014, the remainder of Davidson's term. Anyone interested in applying for the position may contact diannep.alexander@vbschools.com. Deadline is Aug. 16. A public hearing will be held in the board's chambers on Tuesday, Aug. 21. The appointment will be made no later than Sept. 14. Kathy O'Hara, 757-263-1075; Kathleen.ohara@vbschools.com.
